David Sweat, Escaped New York Convict, Is Shot and Captured as Hunt Ends

(NY Times) — David Sweat, the remaining prison escapee on the run in northern New York, was shot by a state trooper and taken into custody on Sunday after a 23-day manhunt that began with an improbable escape from two maximum-security cells and ended in the rain-drenched woods just south of the Canadian border. Mr. Sweat, 35, a murderer who had been serving a sentence of life without parole, was in critical condition at Albany Medical Center late Sunday night, according to Dennis P. McKenna, the hospital's medical director. State troopers on Route 30 near Malone, N.Y., on Saturday in a heavily wooded area where the authorities were searching for David Sweat, a killer who escaped from a prison three weeks ago. The shooting occurred around 3:20 p.m. after a State Police sergeant spotted a man jogging down a road, stopped to question him and recognized him as Mr. Sweat, said Superintendent Joseph A. D'Amico of the New York State Police. The sergeant, Jay Cook, told Mr. Sweat to come over to him, but instead Mr. Sweat turned and fled across a field toward the tree line, Mr. D'Amico said. Sergeant Cook, a firearms instructor who was patrolling by himself, gave chase and finally opened fire, striking Mr. Sweat twice in the torso, because he realized the fugitive was going to make it to the woods and possibly disappear, Mr. D'Amico said. The confrontation with Mr. Sweat took place two days after his partner in flight from the authorities, Richard W. Matt, was shot and killed by a federal agent in the woods of Malone, N.Y. "The nightmare is finally over," Gov. Andrew M. Cuomo said, speaking with Mr. D'Amico on Sunday evening surrounded by law enforcement officers at a news conference in Malone, marked by cheers and applause. "These were really dangerous, dangerous men." Mr. Sweat, who was spotted and captured within a few miles of the Canadian border, was unarmed and wearing camouflage clothes. He was taken to Alice Hyde Medical Center, and then moved to Albany Medical Center for further treatment, Mr. D'Amico said.

Significant Events – International

EU chief feels 'betrayed' by Greece

(BBC) - The European Commission chief, Jean-Claude Juncker, has said he feels "betrayed" by the "egotism" showed by Greece in the failed debt talks. He told a news conference that Greek proposals were "delayed" or "deliberately altered" and the Greek people "should be told the truth", but the door was still open to talks. Talks broke down on Friday sparking a weekend of dramatic developments. Greece called a surprise referendum and Greek banks are closed for a week. The negotiations were not "a game of liar's poker", Mr Juncker said. "Either all win or all lose". He said the talks were broken "unilaterally" by the announcement from the Greek Prime Minister Alexis Tsipras that he was calling a referendum for 5 July. The European Commission president said that he still believed a Greek exit from the euro was not an option and insisted that the creditors' latest option meant more social fairness - "no wage cuts, no pension cuts".

SITUATION SUMMARY

Hoopa Valley Tribe Water Shortage

- On 06/27/15 at 1325 hours the California State Warning Center was advised by the Cal OES Tribal Liaison Duty Officer (TLDO) that the Hoopa Valley Tribe, Humboldt County, was requesting a 2-3 day supply of bottled drinking water for approximately 150 people. The request was increased to a confirmed final total of 300 individuals for 3 days.
- A conference call was held between Cal OES, Humboldt County, and the Hoopa Valley Tribe on 06/28/15 at 1330 hours. Notes from the conference call were forwarded to all parties on the call including the Hoopa Valley Tribe.
 - On 06/27/15 the American Red Cross (ARC) secured 3 liters (1 gallon) of drinking water per person for 3 days.
 - The water was delivered on 06/28/15 at 0900 hours. As the water was being offloaded - the truck had a brake fire, which was extinguished and the truck returned to Alameda.
- Per Rod Mendez, Hoopa Valley Tribe Emergency Manager, the water treatment facility was struggling on Saturday due to heat and water demand. Three (3) pallets of water were purchased by Tribal Leadership on 06/27/15. Additionally, a need remains for a portable water truck to facilitate tank filling.
- Eric Lamoureaux, Cal OES Inland Regional Administrator and Denise Shemenski, TLDO, have reached out to Nestlé's who advised that they will look into donating and delivering a truck load of 22 pallets of water to the Tribe possibly on Tuesday, 06/30/15.
- Since Saturday, Denise Shemenski, Cal OES Tribal Advisor, has been in direct contact with the Governor's Office Tribal Advisor's Office to keep them apprised of this issue and will continue to provide them with updates as progress continues.
- Cal OES Recovery staff are working with Humboldt County and the Hoopa Valley Tribe to coordinate resources that can address the immediate public health and life safety concerns, including resources that can be made available through the Department of Water Resources the State Water Board, as well as any provisions through the California Disaster Assistance Act.
- A follow up conference call has been scheduled for 06/29/15 at 1300 hours.
- Cal OES Duty Officers are gathering information and providing updates as they become available.

Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

- SOC / Inland REOC remains activated in support of 2014 Drought

Weather of Concern

- Hot and dry conditions have primed fuels for enhanced fire danger can be expected through much of Northern California and the Eastern Sierras.
- Thunderstorms with little rainfall and gusty winds could cause fire starts and quick spread.
- Increasing moisture with storms could cause debris flows near burn scars as the weekend progresses.

Active Weather Warnings, Watches and Advisories by County: http://www.wrh.noaa.gov/sto/brief/wwa_bc_cal.php

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

WEATHER

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

Very hot afternoon high temperatures across interior northwest California will return on Monday and then persist through the work week. Late night and morning coastal cloudiness will give way to afternoon sunshine.

Medford Weather:

A weak trough will help keep temperatures somewhat lower today, but highs will still be 10 to 15 degrees above normal for this time of year. The trough will also produce a slight chance of showers through this morning, but any precipitation should move north by this afternoon. By the end of the week, a ridge of high pressure will be firmly in place over northern California causing temperatures to return to near record values by midweek, and the heat is likely to remain in place all the way through the holiday weekend.

Reno Weather:

Hot temperatures will return this week as high pressure strengthens over the Great Basin. Moisture will remain trapped underneath ridge and allow for at least a small chance of thunderstorms each afternoon.

San Francisco Weather:

Temperatures will continue to rise through Wednesday as a ridge of high pressure shifts westward over California. Temperatures will peak Wednesday with highs reaching into the low 100s over inland areas. A slight cool down is expected through the second half of the week. Monsoonal moisture will continue to advect northward across our area with a chance of isolated thunderstorms expected this afternoon.

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Sacramento Weather:

Warming will return today then very hot weather across much of the Sacramento Valley for the remainder of the week. Some Sierra thunderstorms may be present throughout the week.

Hanford Weather:

Monsoonal moisture continues to flow over the area producing showers and isolated thunderstorms to the desert and mountain/foothill areas through Thursday. Otherwise partly cloudy skies and above average temperatures continue to persist.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

Upper-level high pressure will remain in place over the Great Basin for much of the week, carrying varying amounts of monsoonal moisture. This will bring a slight chance of thunderstorms to the mountains and deserts for most of the week. Temperatures are expected to be above normal, especially away from the coast, with slight cooling expected by the end of the week into the holiday weekend.

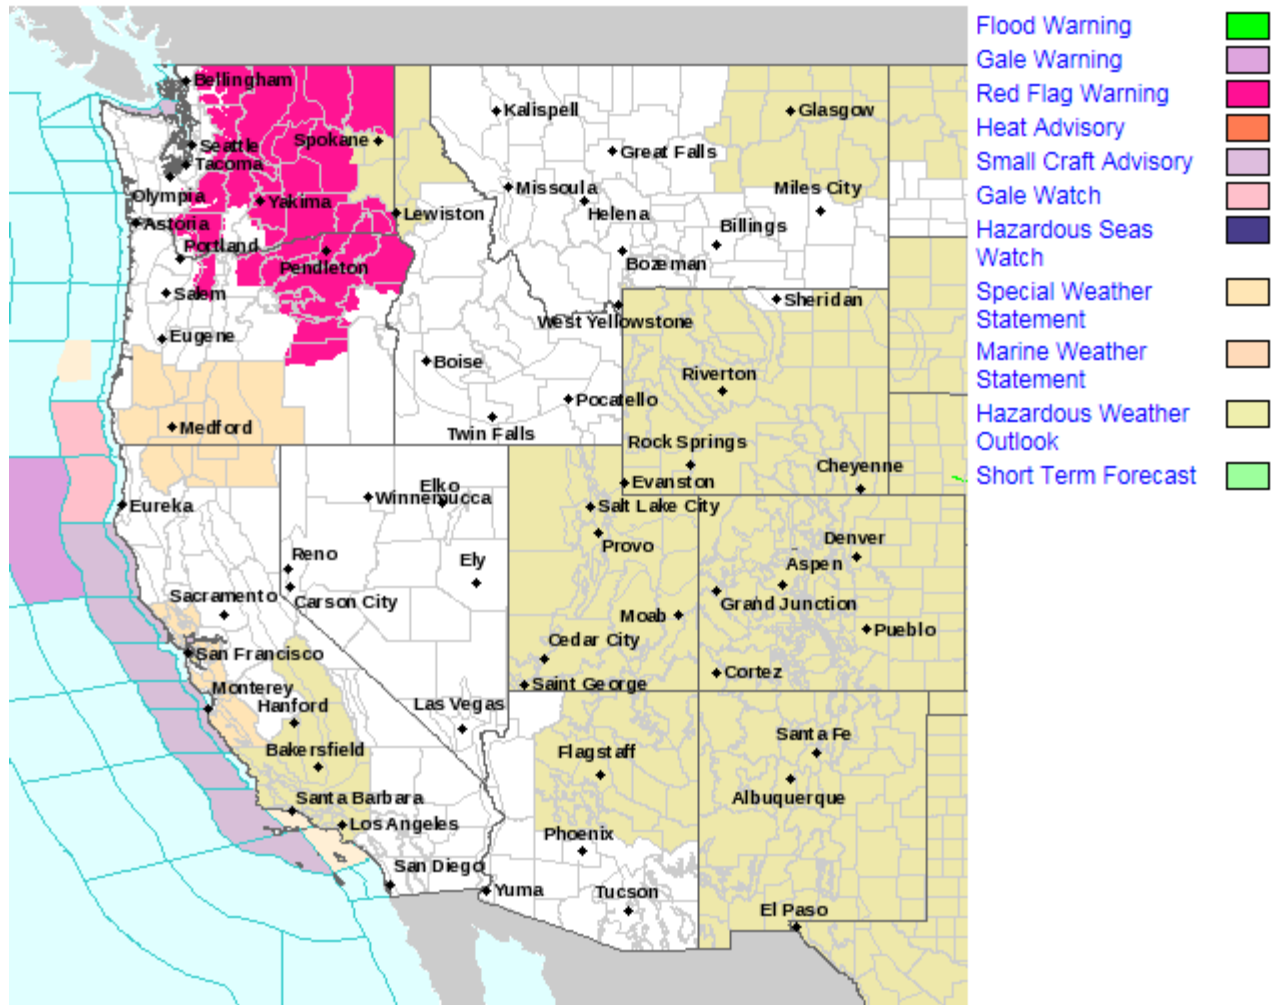

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

High pressure over the Great Basin and low pressure off the California coast will direct a flow of mid and high level monsoonal moisture across southern California for much of the week. This will support a chance of thunderstorms, mainly near the mountains in the afternoon, through Thursday or Friday followed by slow drying for next weekend. Temperatures will be above average through Wednesday then cool to near average for Thursday through next weekend.

Southeast California Weather:

There will be some opportunity for showers to affect lower elevation desert communities during the middle of the week; however the most likely outcome will only be gusty winds and some blowing dust. Afternoon temperatures will remain slightly above normal this week before moderating back down towards normal by the weekend.
